RE: LETTER OF APPOINTMENT AS EDITOR

Dear Jerry,

After an exhaustive recruitment process involving application reviews, panel discussions, document verification, several cups of tea, and at least one meeting that could have been an email, we are delighted to inform you that you have been selected for the position of Editor.

Your application stood out among many qualified candidates. Our selection committee was particularly impressed by your skills, experience, and your apparent ability to spot grammatical errors from a distance.

As Editor, you will be responsible for safeguarding the dignity of punctuation marks, protecting innocent readers from typographical crimes, and ensuring that every publication meets the highest standards of quality.

Please note that this appointment comes with great responsibility. From this day forward, misplaced commas may begin appearing in your dreams, and you may find yourself mentally proofreading billboards, restaurant menus, and WhatsApp messages.

We are confident that you will serve with distinction and contribute significantly to the continued success of our organization. We therefore welcome you to the team and wish you a long and prosperous editorial career.

Kindly signify your acceptance of this appointment at your earliest convenience, unless you have already started correcting this letter.

Congratulations once again on your appointment.

Yours sincerely,

The ICT Guy

This appointment was approved by Management, endorsed by Human Resources, and spell checked by three editors who argued over one comma for forty-five minutes.
